

The Cancer Support House provides cost-free, support & programs for cancer patients. The House is a haven where patients join others to accomplish a shared goal—survivorship.

The Reynolds Cancer Support House is the largest free-standing cancer support facility in the country. Located away from a sterile hospital or clinical setting, the Support House provides individuals a comfortable and inviting place of recovery and hope. Our mission is to provide cost-free, non-medical support programs and services to cancer patients and caregivers, and to provide educational programs to the community in support of early detection of cancer.

Research has shown that people with cancer are better able to deal with their disease when supported by others in similar situations. The Cancer Support House provides a multitude of opportunities for cancer patients and caregivers to connect with each other and access services that have a major impact on their lives including: support groups; professional salon (wigs, hats, turbans, as well as cosmetology services); mastectomy, ostomy, and other medical supplies; prescription & transportation assistance; emergency financial assistance; exercise, drawing, scrapbooking, pottery, and knitting classes; lending library full of cancer related and recreational reading material; and much more!
